"My 50 Years As A British Journalist In America" with GV Member Joy Billington Doty

Join us for an interesting look at the past 50 years of America through the eyes of British Journalist Joy Billington Doty. Joy, a writer who covered the White House for the Washington Star over five administrations, was Entertainment Tonight's Washington reporter and also covered the Reagan administration for the San Diego Union after the demise of the Star in 1981. She began her career as a journalist in Singapore, wrote a column in North Borneo, worked for AP and USIA in Bangkok, and in swinging London in the late 60's wrote for The Times of London.

"Climate and Covid: Tackling the Greatest Challenges" with Sherri Goodman, Senior Fellow, the Wilson Center

Join us as Sherri Goodman, Senior Fellow at the Wilson Center, provides a thought-provoking session on climate change and Covid, two of the greatest challenges of our time. Climate change remains an existential threat to our globe at the same time the greatest pandemic since 1918 is upon us. Our guest speaker is uniquely positioned to discuss these twin crises and how they relate to one another. Sherri is credited with educating U.S. military and government officials over the last generation about the nexus between climate change and national security.

Thursday, November 12th at 5:30 P.M.

"What You Should Know About Medicare"

Come join us as GV Board Members Diana Dennett and Carol Kelly provide an overview of the Medicare program, what the program means to you, and how to change private plan options during open enrollment. Together, Diana and Carol have more than 50 years' experience. They will also discuss the history and parts of Medicare, key questions most often asked, with answers.

Thursday, November 19th at 5:30 P.M.

"Grandparents in the Modern Era"

Please join us for this panel session which will explore the ways in which grandparents interact with and more directly support the young generation with children, than in past generations. The panel features author, Merry Adler, "Grandparents Who Inspired Us Across the World," Pam Godwin, Georgetown Village Member & Board Vice President, and Nancy Regan Georgetown Village Advisory Board member who actively support their own families.
